

City of Petersburg Virginia 2018 Public Safety Annual Report

Managing Director of Public Safety Chief Kenneth A. Miller

On behalf of the Public Safety Members of the City of Petersburg Police, Fire, Juvenile Community Corrections, and Community Corrections I am proud to present our 2018 Annual Report. The pages that follow provide not only a statistical summary of our activities in 2018 but they also provide a snapshot of our day-to-day operations, activities and accomplishments.

In July 2017, when I accepted the opportunity to lead the Petersburg Bureau of Police as Chief, and my transition to Managing Director of Public Safety I along with the members of my command team established three goals for our organization. Enhanced public safety, reduce the fear of crime and provide quality customer service. Through enhanced communication with citizens, and public and private organizations, we continue to work in partnership to find long-term solutions to safety-related issues in an effort to make the City of Petersburg a safe and secure community for all. We continue to strengthen community ties through our community problem solving meetings and community / employee collaboration. Community involvement, proactive crime reporting, information sharing was the catalyst of a successful Citizen's Police Academy.

It is very important that I take this opportunity to thank the men and women of the Petersburg Public Safety Team who have worked tirelessly to provide this quality customer service to our community. I am proud of the work that has been done by all members civilian and sworn, allowing us to continually improve and better serve the citizens of the City of Petersburg.

Petersburg Community Corrections Pretrial and Probation Services

Nicole Loving, Director

Petersburg Community Corrections

Petersburg Community Corrections employs a three prong approach to complete its role in the administration of justice. Pretrial Investigation, Pretrial Supervision, and Probation Services are all vital functions ensuring adult consumers are seamlessly transitioned into the community.

Using supervision as a key component, Petersburg Community Corrections plays a vital role in diverting low-risk offenders through innovative programs and monitoring techniques.

Pre-trial Mission

To promote pretrial justice with impartial bail investigations and make recommendations to the Court based on the risk of non-appearance and/or danger to the community using a validated risk assessment. To enhance public safety by implementing comprehensive supervision strategies and pro-social interventions, which decrease the likelihood of criminal behavior and ensure Court appearance.

Probation Mission

Petersburg Community Corrections is dedicated to enhancing public safety by providing alternatives to incarceration, facilitating viable treatment options, and delivering effective supervision, which reduce recidivism and improve the lives of the citizens in our communities.

Major Components of PCC

Pretrial Investigation:

Probation officers from the PCC travel to Riverside Regional Jail and other facilities to speak with defendants. During this interaction, an assessment is completed and a risk assessment is provided to the court during the arraignment.

Pretrial Supervision:

Officers supervise defendants who conditionally released by the magistrate or court until their court date. The supervision varies based on the order of the court. If the defendant violates any portion of the supervision, the officer submits a violation report to the court.

Probation Supervision:

Individuals who are considered an adult by the courts and convicted of a crime have to meet certain criteria to be eligible for probation services through Petersburg Community Corrections. They must be sentenced by the courts to local probation, be convicted of a non-violent felony or misdemeanor offenses, and have an imposed sentence of no more than twelve months.

Officers use the Risk-Need-Responsivity Model to determine specific evidence based practices, which are used to the types of supervision to use. Different types of supervision include but are not limited to; education, treatment services, and assessment to identify risk to reoffend.
